

ABSTRACT

E-mail security systems are provided. A representative system, among others, includes an e-mail client. A representative e-mail client, among others, includes a message composition logic and a write protect logic. The message composition logic is operable to compose a message to at least one recipient, and the write protect logic is operable to protect the message against subsequent alteration by said at least one recipient. Methods and other systems for e-mail security are also provided.

5